1. 7th European Public Health Conference, Glasgow

The 7th European Public Health Conference will be held in Glasgow, Scotland from 19 to 22 November 2014. The theme for the conference is Mind the gap: reducing inequalities in health and health care.

The abstract submission (for single abstracts and workshops) will open on 1 February 2014. Instructions to assist in the abstracts submission are available for all abstracts. Abstract submission will close on 1 May 2014 (23:59 CET).

Abstracts can be submitted on a variety of topics and submitters are invited to select up to 2 topics related to the abstract.

NEW

Abstracts can be submitted as 'pitch' presentations, which are short (5 minute) oral presentations. This new way of presenting your abstract replaces the moderated posters (combining a poster and a short presentation).

Please check the conference website at www.eupha.org/glasgow2014 regularly for updated information.

2. EUPHA update

EUPHA Four Pillars

We are pleased to announce that we have new Pillar Leads for all our pillars:

Research Pillar	Peter Groenewegen, The Netherlands
Policy Pillar	David Stuckler, United Kingdom
Practice Pillar	Silvio Brusaferrò, Italy
Training and Education Pillar	Antoine Flahault, France

EUPHA Sections

The EUPHA section on Health Impact Assessment has launched a call for nominations for section president and vice-president until the end of January.

The EUPHA section on Child and Adolescent Public Health has a new president: Dr Daniëlle Jansen, who is taking over from Dr Auke Wieggersma, who will remain the vice-president of the section.

The EUPHA section on Food and Nutrition has published the 2013 workshop presentations on their website: http://www.eupha.org/site/upcoming_conference.php?conference_page=371

EUPHA Collaboration

- EUPHA is honoured to be an endorser of the next European Diabetes Leadership Forum which will take place on 4 March 2014 in the Concert Noble, Brussels. Building on the success of the 2012 European Diabetes Leadership Forum, the Danish Diabetes Association will be hosting the 2014 event with the support of Novo Nordisk. For more information: <http://diabetesleadershipforum.eu/>

- EUPHA is honoured to support the 10-point action plan for governments to tackle obesity, published by the International Association for the Study of Obesity (IASO). Professor Walter Ricciardi, President of the European Public Health Association, welcomed the report, commenting that "This report shows why governments must act against the drivers of the obesity epidemic, asserting their democratic mandate to defend the health of their populations against powerful vested interests".
http://www.iaso.org/site_media/uploads/IASO_Press_release_10_Jan2014.pdf
- International Conference on Urban Health – March 2014
EUPHA through its section on Urban public health is a partner in the International Conference on Urban Health 2014, 4-7 March 2014, Manchester Central Convention Centre, UK.
For all the information you need about the conference, visit <https://www.icuh2014.com/> .
- European Conference on Migrant and Ethnic Minority Health – April 2014 – UPDATED LINK
The EUPHA Section of Migrant and Ethnic Minority Health is organizing the next European Conference on Migrant and Ethnic Minority Health in Granada 10-12 April 2014. The website link is: <http://www.eupha-migranthealthconference.com>
- LEPH2014: The 2nd International Conference on law Enforcement and Public Health
EUPHA has become a Supporter of the 2nd International Conference on Law Enforcement and Public Health (LEPH2014). The conference will be held at the Free University, Amsterdam, 5 – 8 October 2014. The conference is organised by the Centre for Law Enforcement and Public Health (CLEPH), Melbourne, Australia in collaboration with the Free University, Police, and Public Health Services, Amsterdam, Netherlands. The call for abstracts is open until 7 March 2014. More information: www.leph2014.com

4. Interesting News

Symposium: Antibiotics and Resistance in Primary Care - the European Experience

What are the links between antibiotic prescriptions, treatment guidelines, and antimicrobial resistance patterns in primary care in Europe? This One-day Symposium will present results of a 4-year EC-funded project (APRES) and the applications to antibiotic stewardship initiatives in Europe. It will include presentations by the European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control (ECDC), the Dutch Ministry of Health and leading experts in the field of antibiotics and antimicrobial resistance in primary care in Europe.

DG SANCO - public consultation on patient safety and quality of care

DG SANCO has just launched a public consultation on patient safety and quality of care to seek opinion of civil society on:

- Whether patient safety measures included in the Recommendation 2009 are implemented and contribute to improving patient safety in the EU;
- Which areas of patient safety are not covered by the Recommendation and should be;
- What should be done at EU level on patient safety beyond the Recommendation;
- Whether quality of healthcare should be given more importance in the future EU activities.

Results of the consultation will contribute to a Commission second report on patient safety, due in April 2014.

We invite you to take part in the consultation and to widely distribute the information to your networks. More information:

http://ec.europa.eu/health/patient_safety/consultations/patient_safety_quality_care_cons2013_en.htm (link to the consultation on the bottom of the web page).

The consultation is open until 28 February 2014.

Public Health and Migration Newsletter

The "WHO Public Health Aspects of Migration in Europe project" (PHAME), based at the WHO European Office for Investments for Health and Development, Venice, Italy, in collaboration with the University of Pécs is establishing a periodic, electronic Newsletter. The goal is to facilitate the sharing of information and promoting dialogue in the field of health and migration. PHAME, funded by the Italian Minister of Health, aims to support the work of policymakers, health planners, local health professionals and others who are responsible for providing quality health care to migrants. The intention is to fill potential gaps in health service delivery, including prevention, diagnostics, monitoring and management of disease, and to provide policy recommendations for enhanced preparedness and response. The project addresses the call for WHO action present in the 2008 WHA resolution 61.17 and the recommendations of the Global Consultation on Migrant Health held in Madrid in 2010. The project is implemented within the WHO/EURO health policy framework Health 2020, paying particular attention towards reducing health inequalities and ensuring people-centred health systems. The plan is to launch the first issue of this periodical by 1st of March 2014. If you are interested in receiving this Newsletter directly, please send a mail to: Dr. Zoltan Katz: zoltan.katz@aok.pte.hu with Cc : istvan.szilard@aok.pte.hu

The Maltese health system: sustainability concerns with an ageing population

This new HiT health system review on Malta discusses many achievements that have occurred in the health system since the last HiT report was published in 1999. Two key events in the past decade have contributed to the further development of the health system. Malta's accession to the European Union in 2004 played an important role guiding new legislation in public health and health protection. The construction of the new acute general hospital Mater Dei Hospital in 2007 was significant in shaping the flow of capital resources. Important reforms include the use of health technology assessment to define the benefit package, improvements in access to medicines through the Pharmacy of Your Choice scheme, and expansion of prevention and community-based services.

While Maltese citizens enjoy one of the highest life expectancies in Europe, the ageing of the population is already putting pressure on public finances. Current policies that are often geared towards hospitalization and institutionalization of older people are costly and contribute towards inefficient utilization of resources. Successfully managing this issue will require strategic investments and efforts to shift care away from hospitals and into the community. The new National Health Systems Strategy under development will help to provide direction.

The Norwegian health system: what can be done to improve user satisfaction?

Norwegian citizens are fortunate to enjoy one of the highest per capita health expenditure in the world. The level of public health care coverage is high (85%) and the health status of the population is very good. However, the satisfaction of people using health care services seems to be 'only' average compared to other OECD countries that spend less. What can be done to improve it?

Poor coordination of hospital care with other health services and long waiting times for elective care are the key reasons for dissatisfaction with the health system. While both of these issues have been on the policy agenda for a long time, the "coordination reform" has recently made a renewed effort to improve these two aspects of the system. The Municipal Health and Care Act and the Public Health Act, enacted in 2011, are the cornerstones of the coordination reform. Their aim is to improve coordination between hospital care and other health services, especially in non-hospital settings. This should reduce pressure on overcrowded hospitals (the average bed occupancy rate in Norway is 93%) by reducing both the average length of stay (ALOS) and waiting times. At the same time, and separately from the coordination reform, increased attention is paid to quality of care and patient safety. The evaluation of the coordination reform is ongoing. Should it lead to improved coordination of care and a reduction in waiting times, it may well succeed in improving the satisfaction of Norwegian patients with the health care system.
